

CHANCES OF PLACEMENT (extrait du site Internet ISEP)

<https://www.isepstudyabroad.org/planning/chances-of-placement/chances-of-placement>

Understand your chances of placement on ISEP Exchange programs.

CHANCES OF PLACEMENT GUIDE

While searching for ISEP Exchange sites, it is important to check each program's chances of placement. Use this guide below to understand the differences of placement.

Chances of Placement	Description
Excellent	Due to strong numbers of outbound exchange activity, this site usually has more placements available than the number of applicants requesting it. This site may also have ample placements available for applicants who list it as an alternative choice or those who apply after the priority deadline. It may be possible for multiple students from the same home institution to be placed at the same host site.
Very Good/ Good	Between Excellent and Fair, this site usually can accommodate the majority of applicants requesting it.
Fair	This site can usually accommodate about half of the number of applicants requesting it.
Limited/ Very Limited	Due to the higher volume of incoming applicants in comparison with the lower number of outbound exchange spaces, this site usually cannot accommodate all the applicants requesting it. Usually all space is filled by the priority deadline. Many applicants may be placed at one of their alternative choices or asked to consider other options. In fairness to the entire ISEP community, it is unlikely for more than one candidate from the same home institution to receive exchange placements at the same host site.
Most Competitive	Institutions marked most competitive are our sites with the highest demand compared to the number of openings available. For this reason, students may apply to only one site marked most competitive, and it must be listed as the first choice on their application. Students who do not want a most competitive site as their first choice should not list it anywhere on their host site request list. In order to be considered for a most competitive site, students must submit their application to ISEP by the priority deadline of February 15.
Closed	This site cannot accept any applicants this round. Please do not apply.

OUR PROMISE

Our goal is to place you at one of your requested sites. For this reason, it is essential that you review your preferred site's academic and language proficiency requirements. If you do not meet a site's requirements, your chances of being selected and placed there will be limited.

To increase your chance of placement at one of your requested sites, be sure to include at least one institution with a "good" (or better) chance of placement.